If you are a fan of the popular football management game Championship Manager 2008, you might need to download this ISO file so that you can play the game offline without having to rely on an internet connection. This ISO file contains everything that is needed for the PC version of this wonderful football management game, including all of your saved games and data. Now it's just a case of determining which teams you want to manage and getting stuck in. Make sure that if possible before downloading this file that no one else has already done so legally by checking out Wikipedia or doing a search on Google. There are plenty of places to find 'Cheat Code' downloads, but please ensure that this is not one of those. [/ARTICLE] System Requirements:

The first international versions were released in 2007. The game was released for Microsoft Windows on 30 October, 2007. The game was originally scheduled until January 2008 for release on Microsoft Windows, but due to bad reviews (some labeled the game "a turd") EA Sports decided to push the release back by six months. Championship Manager 2008 was released on 26 May 2008. All international versions are exactly the same as the UK version. They feature the same data, teams, players and leagues except for team names which are translated into local languages. The game covers 20 playable nations/divisions (18 in the UK edition, which has only one league for England, Scotland and Wales). These nations/divisions are: Argentina (Primera División), Australia, Belgium (Jupiler League), Brazil (Série A), Denmark, Finland (Veikkausliiga), France (Ligue 1 & 2), Germany (Bundesliga & 2. Bundesliga), Italy (Serie A & Lega Pro Prima Divisione), Netherlands (Eredivisie & Jupiler League), Norway, Poland (Ekstraklasa & I Liga), Portugal, Russia, Scotland (Scottish Premier League), Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Wales. The international versions have several different leagues/divisions to the UK release. For example the French edition has two leagues for France while the Danish version has one for Denmark while the Belgian version features six divisions including all of Belgium's subdivisions. The game features 1,431 playable clubs but only 505 playable teams in-game. This game includes all of the playable leagues/divisions in the game plus several other internationally popular teams including AC Sparta Prague, Celtic FC, FC Köln, Fulham, Hamburg SV and MSK Zilina. The game was considered to be one of the worst football management games by critics, with "Edge" magazine stating that "FIFA 08 (2008) is judged as a better football game than Championship Manager 2008", also noting it as "a really flawed effort". The scores for the game were generally low across all major digital sites at launch. Press releases from EA Sports were criticised for their lack of detail and truthfulness.
